

Volodymyr Volvakov

FRONTEND WEB DEVELOPER

Profile

Last couple of years I spent on self-education and work as frontend web developer after my decision about career switch. My previous entire professional career has been associated with taking care about people problems, workflow management, teamwork and teaching other people in my specialty. This experience of work was a great school for building my soft skills. All these qualities I took with me into a web developer career.

I'm very fond of web development cause it makes me feel my ability of creating something new. This is a profession that holds the future and it provides great possibilities for my personal and professional growth. I'm sure that my love and ability to learn and gain new knowledge and new skills, my life experience and my soft skills will lead me through the path of becoming a successful web developer.
